

I am writing due to the message that I have received from my state's Attorney General, Steve Carter, concerning the CBA's attempt to weaken Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. I find this appalling that these institutions are attempting this because I find the law such a value. Not often does a good intention law work but this has all but eliminated unwanted calls to my residence. In the busy world that we live in, we should not be hassled in our own confines of home. I ask you to disregard this request made by the CBA. If I need to contact an "established business relationship" (in which I cringe to think of what that definition maybe and how it could be adequately policed) I will do so on my own accord. Thank you for your time.
